Court Holds Fate Of 'Bubble-Gum' Fund Left to Kids

WINCHESTER, VA.—On Virginia's highest court rests the faith of 609 children at John Kerr public school. For the children are hoping the court will return to them the $85,000 "bubble-gum trust" left them by "Old Man Henry."

They were disinherited under ruling of a corporation court judge who ruled that the strange bequest of the late Charles B. Henry was invalid. The judge awarded the estate to Henry's relatives.

When Henry, an 80-year-old curbside merchant, died he specified in his will that the income from his estate should be divided each Christmas and Easter among the John Kerr pupils.

He wanted them to spend it as they chose—on "bubble gum or toys," or otherwise. He just wanted them to "remember old man Henry." Each child would have received under the bequest between $5 and $10 a year.

The lower court judge ruled that the trust fund was not a charitable trust, that it did not provide for educating the children, and that the net effect would be to tie up Henry's estate for all time. Thus, he said, it violated the rule against the creation of perpetuities.

Attorneys for the Shenandoah Valley National bank, trustee said, however, that they probably would appeal the decision to the Virginia supreme court.

Suit in the case was brought by Mrs. Harriett H. Taylor, Winchester, first cousin of Henry, and other kinsmen.

Bachelor Comes to Work, Turns Out as Baby Sitter
OMAHA, NEB. — Charles Padgett, 35, a bachelor, came to Minister a ceiling and stayed three days to sit with seven children.
That was the story he told authorities after three days of diaper changing, cooking and "playing with the kids."
Padgett said he went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Durbin to do some repair work. Mrs. Durbin left the house to "go down town." She asked Padgett to watch her seven children ranging in age from 11 years to 10 months. She said she'd be "right back."
But, Padgett said, she didn't come back.
"I finally put the kids to bed after I'd fixed dinner," he said. "I kept watching for the mother. The kids were swell. I even got used to diapers."
When juvenile authorities heard of the plasterer's plight, they came to the rescue.

New Auto Speedometer Idea May Add to Highway Safety
SILVER CREEK, N. Y.—Development of a new auto speedometer device may help cut down the country's terrific fatality toll.
A gadget which constantly projects in brilliant illumination the changing reading from the dashboard speedometer to a tiny metal screen on the windshield has been put into production. The dime-sized screen is fastened about two inches below the driver's normal line of sight.
The relatively inexpensive accessory is hailed by the concern's president, Lawrence Schmitt, as "the first basic improvement in speed since the advent of the magnetic speedometer decades ago."
"The automobile driver now can keep his eyes on the road where they belong at all times and still know his exact speed," Schmitt said.

Kentuckians Asked to Give Babies' Weight at Birth
LOUISVILLE, KY.—Kentuckians have been asked to include the weight of their babies when giving information for birth certificates.
J. P. Blackerby, registrar of births and deaths at the state department of health, said the request was in line with a nationwide campaign to find causes of premature city, leading cause of infant deaths. The information will be valuable in setting up a program to reduce the infant death rate, he said.
Blackerby reported new forms for certificates in use since January 1 have a section for such information at the bottom of the certificate labeled "For Medical and Health Use Only."
Information in this section is confidential, he said, and is not included when copies of certificates are issued.

14-Year-Old Boy Steals $28,000 Fishing Trawler
DUNDEE, SCOTLAND.—The 14-year-old sea-lover whose three-day solo voyage made him seasick pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing the 28,000 fishing boat in which he sailed halfway to Denmark.
Johnnie Guthrie said he stole the trawler Girl Jean. The trawler Reptonian found him stranded three days later 200 miles out in the North Sea and towed him back.
Johnny was taken to a remand home—British equivalent of a reform school.
